

Credit Card Support and Usage Guidelines

Credit card applications generally require identity proof, address proof, income proof, and a completed application form.

If a credit card transaction is disputed, customers should contact support promptly and share the transaction date, amount, and merchant details.

Customers should review billing statements each month and report unauthorized transactions without delay.

Cardholders should avoid using public Wi-Fi for card payments unless the connection and merchant are trusted.

Replacement cards for damaged or expired cards are usually sent after customer verification and address confirmation.
